

2010 Sliding scale and Veggie Voucher Fund

*How much does a share cost?****

Again this year the FSF CSA is offering a payment policy called a sliding scale. Sliding scales allow for everyone in our community to pay based on their ability, while maintaining a fair wage for the farmers. At the center of the scale is the actual cost of growing the food. The low end of the scale is about $5 less each week of the 24 week season, the high end $5 more.

Full shares: standard rate (cost of growing the food): $570 (app. $24 per week).

Sliding scale: $450 (app. $19 per week) to $690 (app. $29 per week).

Partial shares: standard rate (cost of growing the food): $410 (app. $17 per week).

Sliding scale: $290 (app. $12 per week) to $530 (app. $22 per week).

The Veggie Voucher fund (formerly 'scholarship fund')

The Fair Share Farm CSA Core Group is raising money for a fund to further subsidize the cost of the shares for our low-income members. Fundraising projects for 2009 include a CSA-wide yard sale (to donate items contact Stacey Cook) and 2010 Fair Share Farm calendar (contact Heather Murphy).

***Each household decides where they fit on the scale and writes in that amount on their contract. If the total contract amounts are lower than the cost of producing the shares, we will ask the membership to make up the difference. If the amounts are higher, we will contribute the excess to the Veggie Voucher fund to further assist our low-income members.

2010 Sliding scale and Scholarship Fund

*How much does a share cost?****

Again this year the FSF CSA is offering a payment policy called a sliding scale. Sliding scales allow for everyone in our community to pay based on their ability, while maintaining a fair wage for the farmers. At the center of the scale is the actual cost of growing the food. The low end of the scale is about $5 less each week of the 24 week season, the high end $5 more.

Full shares: standard rate (cost of growing the food): $570 (app. $24 per week).

Sliding scale: $450 (app. $19 per week) to $690 (app. $29 per week).

Partial shares: standard rate (cost of growing the food): $410 (app. $17 per week).

Sliding scale: $290 (app. $12 per week) to $530 (app. $22 per week).

The Veggie Voucher fund (formerly 'scholarship fund')

The Fair Share Farm CSA Core Group is raising money for a fund to further subsidize the cost of the shares for our low-income members. Fundraising projects for 2009 include a CSA-wide yard sale (to donate items contact Stacey Cook) and 2010 Fair Share Farm calendar (contact Heather Murphy).

***Each household decides where they fit on the scale and writes in that amount on their contract. If the total contract amounts are lower than the cost of producing the shares, we will ask the membership to make up the difference. If the amounts are higher, we will contribute the excess to the Veggie Voucher fund to further assist our low-income members.